

A Quality Improvement Project in Critical Care Alarm Monitor Management:
An Examination of Frequencies as Outcome Measures and Impact of Context Factors on Results

Layla Z. Arkilic, DNP-C, JD, MSN, RN
University of Virginia School of Nursing
Doctor of Nursing Practice – Candidate
Mailing Address:
2510 11th Street, North
Arlington, Virginia 22201

Ms. Arkilic is a former trial attorney and current doctor of nursing practice candidate at the University of Virginia School of Nursing, and also works as an ICU nurse at a university-based academic medical center in Washington, DC.

Elizabeth Hundt, PhD, APRN, NP-C, ACNS-BC
Assistant Professor of Nursing, Department of Acute and Specialty Care
Mailing Address:
202 Jeanette Lancaster Way
P.O. Box 800782
Charlottesville, VA 22903

Dr. Hundt's professional career has spanned over 35-years and focuses on the care of adults with heart disease and stroke, starting as a bedside nurse and advancing to Nurse Practitioner and Clinical Nurse Specialist in both inpatient and outpatient settings including cardiovascular and neurologic ICUs.

Beth Quatrara, DNP, RN, CMSRN, ACNS-BC
Assistant Professor of Nursing, Department of Acute and Specialty Care
Director of Doctor of Nursing Practice Program
Mailing Address:
202 Jeanette Lancaster Way
P.O. Box 800782
Charlottesville, VA 22903

Dr. Quatrara directs the UVA Doctor of Nursing Practice Program. Her 30-year rich clinical background includes leadership roles in numerous quality improvement, evidence-based practice, and research projects aimed at improving patient care outcomes.

Acknowledgments: (as per Critical Care Nurse submission guidelines - provided if accepted)

Funding and Financial Disclosures: None

Keywords: alarm fatigue, intensive care unit, alarm monitor management, ICU nurse

