Consent Form “Forensic Judgments”

Purpose: In this study, you will answer questions about yourself and interpret forensic data.

Steps: If you agree to complete this HIT, you will be asked to read short paragraphs, a short set of instructions, answer one or more very simple factual questions about what you’ve read, and make an investigative decision. Then you will answer some questions about yourself.

Time required: This study takes about 6 minutes.

Anonymity: Your responses will be identified with a unique response code. Your name will not be associated with your responses. Analysis of results will not include any information that makes it possible to identify you.

Risks and benefits: This study will not expose you to any known risks. The only known cost to you of participating in this study is the inconvenience of giving your time. Other than compensation (see below), you may not receive any benefits from participation. You will be compensated for your completion of study questions through the Mechanical Turk system.

Compensation: By completing this HIT, you will earn $41.

Voluntary participation: Taking this study is completely voluntary, and you can withdraw at any time by simply closing out of the study. If you withdraw in this manner, your data will be destroyed. You will not incur any penalty or loss of benefits to which you are otherwise entitled by refusing to participate or discontinuing your participation at any time. The investigator may withdraw a participant based on any of the following reasons: (1) non-U.S. location according to IP address, (2) repeated study completions from the same IP address, (3) non-compliance with quality control measures, or (4) failure to enter a valid response ID when prompted.

Contact with questions: The researchers conducting this study are K.L. Sack and Dr. N.J.G. Winter. If you have any questions, you may contact the principal investigator at kls9t@virginia.edu or Dr. Winter at nwinter@virginia.edu. If you have any questions or concerns regarding your rights as a participant in this study, you may contact the U.Va. Institutional Review Board at irbsbshelp@virginia.edu or (434) 924-5999.

I have read and understood the above consent form. If desired, I printed a copy for my own records. By clicking next, I indicate my decision to participate in this study.

Violent crime, including murder, robbery, and assault, can affect anyone. It is a particular problem for people with disabilities. Data from the U.S. Census Bureau's American Community Survey (ACS) and the 2000 U.S. Standard Population show that people with disabilities are almost two and a half times as likely to experience violent crime victimization. It's even worse for women. Disabled women have about a 5% annual chance of experiencing violent crime, as compared to about a 2% chance for women without disabilities. Collecting evidence from disabled crime victims can be especially difficult, making evidence from suspects themselves even more important in cases like this.

Please answer the following questions and then click next to continue.

The next questions are a little different. Read the directions carefully.

This survey is part of an investigation of general public opinion concerning a variety of social issues. You will probably find that you agree with some of the statements, and disagree with others, to varying extents. Please indicate your reaction to each statement on the line below each item according to the scale below:

Select -4 if you very strongly disagree with the statement.

Select -3 if you strongly disagree with the statement.

Select -2 if you moderately disagree with the statement.

Select -1 if you slightly disagree with the statement.

Select +1 if you slightly agree with the statement.

Select +2 if you moderately agree with the statement.

Select +3 if you strongly agree with the statement.

Select +4 if you very strongly agree with the statement.

If you feel exactly and precisely neutral about an item, select 0.

Important: You may find that you sometimes have different reactions to different parts of a statement. For example, you might very strongly disagree (-4) with one idea in a statement, but slightly agree (+1) with another idea in the same item. When this happens, please combine your reactions, and select how you feel on balance (a -3 in this case).

Debriefing Statement
“Forensic Judgments”

This is the end of the study. Thank you for participating in this research.

The following is additional information about the study you just completed. The stimuli you viewed, including physiological data and background investigation, were constructed for research purposes. The study implied credibility assessment tools detect deception. This is not true. They detect physiological responses associated with a wide range of physical, mental, and emotional states. The true purpose of the study was to see whether irrelevant information and/or contextual conditions change forensic judgments. This was not stated at the beginning, because knowing what researchers are studying often changes people’s responses in research studies. Because you were deceived, you have the option now of requesting that all your data in relation to this study be destroyed immediately. If you do so, there is no penalty.

For further information about the phenomena under study, please see the National Research Council's review of the scientific evidence on the polygraph, available for free online at http://www.nap.edu/catalog.php?record_id=10420.

If you agree to inclusion of your data, it may be presented at meetings or conferences, and become part of academic research submitted for publication. Your personally identifying information has not been collected and will never be associated with your data.

By clicking next, you indicate permission for your data to be used in this study. By exiting the survey, you indicate you wish for your data to be destroyed immediately.

Thank You!
